Issue: Labels do not have required "Contains Sulphites" declaration.

Since 25th November 2005 there has been a legal requirement to indicate "Contains Sulphites" on the labels of wines and Champagnes that contain more than 10 ppm sulphites. These batches/lotcodes of Champagne were labelled after this date and do not have "Contains Sulphites" on the back label. Only the above batches/lotcodes are affected.

Sulphites are antioxidants commonly used in the production of wine and Champagne to protect and preserve the quality of the wine.

Action required: The Food Standards Agency have requested that the impacted batches of the product described above must be removed from sale until the indication "Contains Sulphites" can be applied.

If the impacted batches of this product are in a warehouse please place on hold to prevent further distribution.

If the product is on shelf please remove from sale.

Please retain the bottles you have removed from sale and call the number below:

0845 601 4558

We will then send you "Contains Sulphites" stickers which you can apply under the back label and return to shelf for sale.
